This action research fellowship in social entrepreneurship provides a comprehensive program of mentored, field-based study and action research for undergraduate juniors within the GSBI® worldwide network of social entrepreneurs. The fellowship combines a fully funded 6-8 week international summer field experience in the developing world with two quarters of academically rigorous research.

In 2015, we anticipate awarding about 17 fellowships to conduct action research such as the following:

- · Evaluate marketing and distribution of sustainable fuel for household cooking in Uganda
- Develop a marketing and business plan for a sustainable compost biodigester in rural Mexico (Spanish fluent students are encouraged to apply)
- Design a comprehensive marketing plan for a customized tutoring program to help disadvantaged students succeed in South Africa
